This year, The Arc of Northern Virginia is celebrating 60 years of service to people with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their families.

Six decades ago, parents in Arlington, Alexandria, and Fairfax County, who believed their children with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD) had rights like everyone else, came together for a meeting. They felt that their children deserved to be included in the community and to pursue fulfillment and happiness just like everyone else.

At that time, little was known about IDD or its causes. There were virtually no programs or activities to assist in the development and care of people with IDD or to support families. It was common for doctors to tell parents that the best place for their child was in an institution.

But these advocates wanted more. They wanted their loved ones to lead fulfilling lives in the community and not be shuttered away in dark institutions. Emboldened by their collective desire to raise their children at home, their refusal to accept institutionalization as the only option, and the belief that their collective voices gave their movement strength, The Arc of Northern Virginia was created.

Today, we serve more than 39,000 individuals with IDD — such as autism, Down syndrome, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and rare chromosomal disorders — of all ages and their families in the cities and counties of Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, and Falls Church. We provide education, information, and referrals to help caregivers navigate complex disability systems throughout each stage of their loved one's life. We provide financial management through our Special Needs Trust program. We have created innovative tech tools that help people with IDD live more independently. And, we advocate at the local and state level for better policies and funding for the needs of people with disabilities.

We've witnessed a lot of change in the past 60 years. We've celebrated achievements such as the Americans With Disabilities Act, the closure of institutions, and advancements in technology supports. Most importantly, we have played a pivotal role in changing the public perception of disability.

What has not changed in the last six decades are our values. Every workshop, resource guide, webinar, advocacy campaign, legislator meeting, and decision we make is driven by our belief in personhood, community, rights, choice, and human dignity.

The mission of The Arc of Northern Virginia will always be to create opportunities for people with IDD to live inclusive and meaningful lives — not just in times of crisis — but for their whole lives.

Thank you for celebrating with us. Thank you for supporting our mission, and helping to ensure our strength and capacity to continue The Arc of Northern Virginia's work for another 60 years, and beyond.

Executive Director
